PROJECT INJUSTICE 2 BREAKDOWN SHEET

DESCRIPTION

Injustice 2 a side-scrolling fighting game and sequel to the hit game by Nether Realms, Injustice: Gods Among Us, where players battle against characters from the DC Comics Universe. It has been given reviews of no less than 90% approval from at least 18 well-known game critics, as well as the “Best Fighting Game” award at E3 2016. My contribution to this project was over 200 shots of the in-game fight animation, such as jump attacks, duck attacks, single hit attacks, combos, special moves, meter burns attacks (MB), victim animation reacting to attacks, navigation moves, and prop animation.

ACHIEVEMENTS

- Few weeks into the project, I assisted animator Ian Schneider to navigate and use the tools in Motion Builder due to my previous experience with the software. After 2-3 months of using the tools, Ian became one of the strongest animators on the team.
- Scarecrow’s chain hook prop arrived at the studio without a rig. I created an aim-constraint system to animate the shots Overdose and Succumb To Fear. I also wrote a step-by-step document for the team to import prop animation from Maya to Motion Builder for Brainiac’s six tendrils.
- Assisted lead animator Ryan Torrey to complete his more advanced shots and allow Ryan time to prep the next character for animation.
- Three months before wrapping the project, I assisted Ryan Torrey in teaching his techniques and critiquing shots produced by the newly hired animators, Brandon Yates, Kristen Fujiyama, and Paul Eppleston, so Ryan had minimal notes and could continue his work. The team was able to remain on time and delivering quality shots.
